TALLAHASSEE WOMEN IN STEM CAREERS - Tuesday, November 27, 2018

On Tuesday, November 27, 2018 STEMS4Girls Giving Tuesday gala will highlight Tallahassee's women in STEM careers who will share their thoughts about the benefits of STEM educational enhancement activities in afterschool programs.

Keynote Speaker: Roxanne Hughes, Ph.D., Director of Center for Integrating Research and Learning, National High Magnetic Field Lab. Her research and work focus on programs (particularly afterschool and summer programs) that improve girls' confidence, interest, and persistence in STEM beginning at the elementary and middle school level.

The event will spotlight a range of STEM related activities children can participate in including STEM literacy AND an appreciation award ceremony for our outstanding STEMS4Girls volunteers. Dinner is included with your donation and entertainment is provided by the FAMU Jazz quartet and two phenomenal high school musical talents. Parents, supporters and community members are expected to attend.
