Awake to Woke to Work: Building a Race Equity Culture

October 9, 2019 at 10:00 AM EST

Join Kerrien Suarez and Andrew Plumley from Equity in the Center (EiC) to learn new insights and best practices that your organization can use to measurably shift your organizational culture, operationalize equity, and move from a dominant organizational culture to a Race Equity Culture.

Kerrien Suarez
Executive Director

With over 19 years of consulting and management experience, Kerrien Suarez has supported executive and leadership teams in bold decision making to solve strategic and operational challenges. As an independent consultant, she managed strategic and implementation planning projects for ProInspire, UNCF, National Black Child Development Institute, National Center for Children in Poverty and Martha's Table. Her focus on diversity, equity and inclusion developed through support of emerging leaders in education reform, early childhood education policy and social enterprise.

Andrew Plumley
Associate Director

Andrew Plumley has a background in sustainability, strategy, and diversity, equity, and inclusion consulting in both the social and private sectors. He has also worked in education, where he's advised on diversity and inclusion strategy at higher ed. institutions, as well as provided access and success programming for Pell eligible, students of color. Andrew is a "We All Belong" program board member for the Community Economic Development Office, as well as served as a city council appointed Police Commissioner in the state of Vermont.
